WHERE THEY PLAY TO-DAY Richmond at Lynchburg.
Roanoke at Norfolk.
Petersburg at Danville.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Lynchburg, Va., August 1 .- Rich mond got the worst beating of the local season this afternoon when the Shoemakers took the initial game of the series by the score of 13 to 6.

Verbout and Morrissey were driven off the slab, and Boyce, the new southpaw recruit, who went in to stop the slugging, succeeded, but he could not prevent runs with the miserable support given him. He should have gone through his four innings with only one run, and that was a circuit by Manager Smith in the eighth, this being the first of the season here.

The homer was a clean, long fly over Titman's head, long enough for over Titman's head, long enough for five bases.

Brandon was hit hard, even harder than the locals found the visiting slabmen, but his support was faultless. Even the battery errors were not costly, while every misplay on the part of the Colts cost runs. This is shown by the fact that in the sixth with two out, a single by Rowe was followed by two passed balls by Cowan, putting Rowe on third. This seemed to unnerve the plucky tryout and he filled the bases by walking Heller and Arthur Smith. Then Levy hit to Baker, but Shaw failed to cover second, and a run scored. Dick Smith took one on his ribs, and another run went over, and Morrison got his second bingle, scoring two more, after Dick Smith had gone home on a bad peg by Shaw to Cowan. Boyco's support could not have been better.

The game was long drawn out, be:

tenor. What does anybody think? It would seem that Lynchburg took a slight brace and then wrapped a little stiffening about the brace to make it effective. Thirteen runs from thirteen this and four errors would indicate that the Colts had an off day. A slump in fact. The Colts, by the way, pulled down fifteen hits, and could bring but six tallies across the plate. Which is failing to run bags some. Lynchburg wasn't troubled with anything of the kind, it would seem, and every hit counted.

can't do it all. Brennan held out pretty well on one occasion, and he might be able to do it again. He can at least do as well as was done yesterday.

Danville came back strong at Petersburg yesterday after what looked like the beginning of a real slump. The disorganization, however, is not too bad to be remedied, and Steve Griffin is on the lookout for good material at all hours of the night and day. The Richmond management might take a hint from Griffin's work. Griffin is at all times willing to part with a good baseball player for a better one. He has no sentiment about the matter, and tells every one connected with his team that he is out to win games.

With a club that has the patronage to draw upon that Danville has, Griffin can afford to purchase player after player and to strengthen his team every time, and has paid enough money in transportation for lemons to buy Ty Cobb, almost. There is usually very little to the good things in the baseball world, and a good player has got
